Writing sample: podcast publishing copy written for a client podcast. Client, guest, and firm names have been replaced with placeholders, and identifying details have been generalized, to protect confidentiality.

Decoding Red Flags in Law Firms w. [Guest Name]

How a longtime personal injury attorney built a growing firm, and competes against national advertisers with nine-figure budgets, by becoming the most trusted name in truck accident law.

Show Notes

When venture capital flooded the personal injury market and national firms started spending hundreds of millions of dollars a year on advertising, most small firm owners decided they couldn't compete. [Guest Name] decided to do something different. As managing partner of [Law Firm], a mid-sized firm with offices across [Region], [Guest Name] has spent decades doing exactly one thing: truck accident and commercial vehicle cases. He's board certified in truck accident law, he's published a consumer guide to hiring the right attorney, and he hosts his own consumer-facing podcast. In this conversation, [Host Name] and [Guest Name] break down why the legal advertising market is unrecognizable from what it was 20 years ago, what the average consumer still doesn't know when hiring an attorney, and how a firm committed to depth over volume keeps winning cases, and clients, against gorillas with unlimited budgets. If you're a law firm owner trying to figure out how to compete without outspending the market, this episode is your blueprint.

Marketing Copy (Guest)

LinkedIn Post

I sat down with [Host Name] on [Show Name] to talk about what it takes to build a law firm when the market around you is being rewritten by venture capital and firms spending hundreds of millions on advertising.

I've been practicing truck accident law for decades. I've watched legal advertising go from courthouse-square dominance to Yellow Pages to TV to national VC-backed firms in my own backyard. Every step of the way, I've had to figure out how to keep winning without matching their budgets.

A few things from the conversation worth sharing:

- Advertising doesn't make you good. Billboards, TV spots, and Google Ads can get you cases. They can't make you qualified to handle them. Clients often can't tell the difference until it's too late.
- The question almost no one asks: Are you board certified in the area of law I need? That one question eliminates most of the field.
- Content isn't marketing. A client showed up to her intake for a wrongful death case having read my book the night before. She asked me questions straight from it. We won the case. That's what putting out useful information over time actually does.
- It's never been easier to be the right attorney. The same technology making it easy to hire the wrong lawyer also makes it easier than ever to learn, specialize, and build real expertise. There's no excuse not to be excellent.
- Build something that survives you. Every attorney at my firm started as a law clerk. Most have been here for decades. I invest in them because I want a firm that outlasts me.

Full episode: [link]

If you want a copy of the book, reach out. Happy to send one.

#TruckAccidentLaw #LawFirmGrowth #LegalMarketing #PersonalInjuryLaw #LawFirmLeadership

Social Clip Copy

Clip 1:
"I know who the good divorce lawyers are. Who the good criminal lawyers are. The average person hiring one has no idea. That's the problem I've spent [my career] trying to solve."

#LegalMarketing #HireTheRightAttorney #TruckAccidentLaw #LawFirmGrowth

Clip 2:
"I put in the hours to become a decent trial lawyer. Marketing is no different. It takes the same time and effort. Most lawyers just never make that investment."

#LegalMarketing #LawFirmGrowth #TruckAccidentLaw #PersonalInjuryLaw

Clip 3:
"Marketing isn't the problem. Confusing visibility with quality is. A urinal ad doesn't make you good or bad. So what does? That's the question worth asking."

#LegalMarketing #HireTheRightAttorney #LawFirmGrowth #TruckAccidentLaw

Clip 4:
"A sore neck that heals in five days, most PI lawyers can handle that. A wrongful death with young kids involved, that's a different situation. The bigger the matter, the more the right attorney matters."

#HireTheRightAttorney #TruckAccidentLaw #PersonalInjuryLaw #LawFirmGrowth